LITTLE HOPE FOR WOUNDED WOMAN

Message from Harrisburg Hospital
States that Arendtsville Woman Can Scarcely Recover. Bullet in Center of Brain.

Practically no hope is given at the Harrisburg Hospital this afternoon for the recovery of Mrs. James Adams, of Arendtsville, who was shot in the head Tuesday evening by her fifteen year old daughter, Virgie, while they were playing together.

A message from the hospital this afternoon stated that an X-Ray examination of the wound showed the bullet to be lodged in the very center of the brain and such a thing as its removal is out of the question. There has been no improvement in Mrs.
Adams' condition since she was taken to the hospital and when The Gettysburg Times asked "Is there any chance of recovery?" the answer was "There seems to be no hope. The patient may linger for several weeks or she may die in several hours."

Mrs. Adams was taken to the Harrisburg Hospital on Wednesday morning by Dr. C. L. Merriman, one of the physicians in attendance, and by her son, John Adams. Dr. Merriman returned home in the evening but the son is in Harrisburg and is staying with his mother as much as possible.
She is partly conscious and, before leaving home Wednesday, seemed to recognize the members of her family.

The shooting, which was entirely accidental, has cast a gloom over the community in which she lived and the deepest sympathy is expressed for the members of the family and especially for the young daughter whose play ended so disastrously.

NEWS AT COLLEGE

Founders' Day, Tennis Games. Two Players on State Team.

April 7th will be observed as Founders' Day at Gettysburg College and in the evening at 8 o'clock Dr. Granville will give an illustrated lecture in Brua Chapel telling the history of the institution.

An ambitious tennis schedule has been announced. It includes a match with Dickinson here on May 9. All the other contests will be held away from home. The team will visit the following schools, Mercersburg Academy, Tome Institute, Georgetown University,
Catholic University, Lehigh,
Swarthmore, Johns Hopkins, Lebanon Valley and Dickinson.

Two Gettysburg players are included on the All-Pennsylvania basketball team picked by the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin which says: "The best team from the reports of the games would be Benfer, of Albright; Mehaffie, of Gettysburg; and McKissick, of Swarthmore, forwards; Jes-ser, of Penn State, centre; and Ikeler, of Gettysburg, and Greene, of Penn State, guards. Benfer must be considered the best all-round player. He scored 51 field goals and his opponents scored but 8. McKissick scored 21 field goals in four games and his opponents scored 3, while Mehaffie tossed in 30 field goals in six games and his opponents registered 4. Jesser scored 14 field goals in four games and his opponents tallied twice. Price, of Lehigh, played part of the time at guard and part at forward and his record was not quite up to the others. Greene, of Lehigh, was not strong enough at guard to beat out either Ikeler, of Gettysburg, or Greene of State. W. and J. and University of Pittsburgh changed players so often that they didn't have any one playing enough games to be considered. State played the steadiest during the entire season. Albright was mainly Benfer."

LONG WALK

Hiked All the Way from Lancaster to Gettysburg.

Sixteen members of the Lancaster
Y. M. C. A. arrived in Gettysburg late Wednesday afternoon after having walked all the way from that city to this place. They had encountered bad roads and rough weather and were pretty well tired out when they reached here. Several days were taken to the trip. The return home will be made by rail.

WERE MARRIED IN COURT HOUSE

Miss Boose, of Littlestown, is Married in Presence of Frederick County Court Officials, one of whom Delivers a Charge.

If Miss Minnie A. Boose, of Littlestown, and Harvey J. Hull, of Hanover, who are now Mr. and Mrs. Hull, have a stormy married career, it will be because they did not heed the good advice given them immediately after their wedding in the Judges' Chambers at the Court House in Frederick Tuesday morning, says the Morning
Post of that city.

"Those present" consisted of County Commissioner Frank Stevens, Court Clerk Marion S. Moberly, Deputy Court Clerk Harry Chapline, and Deputy Register of Wills Clerk Herbert S. Kreh. These four acted as bridesmaids, ushers, and general attendants.
The minister imported by the groom especially for the occasion, was the Rev. Martin Sweitzer, of Union Bridge, a friend of Mr. Hull.

Even in the privacy of the Judges' Chambers it was hard to get away from the atmosphere of legal procedure. The Rev. Mr. Sweitzer prefaced the ceremony by seating himself in the chair behind the judicial desk, while the prospective bride and groom stood before him like prisoners in the dock. Then the minister arose and pronounced the words that made them man and wife.

When the ring had been put on and the party were wondering what to do next, Mr. Moberly stepped forward, cleared his throat and delivered himself of a piece of fatherly advice:

"I was married myself, twenty-six years ago," said Mr. Moberly, "and I congratulate you and wish you all the happiness in the world. In the path of wedlock, you will find pitfalls and traps into which, if you are not careful, you will be caught and entangled.
Differences of opinion will arise, and there may be quarrels. In these times of strife and darkness, let the ladies prevail. That is the best plan. I do it myself."

MAY RIDE ALONG

Rural Mail Carriers May Take Road
Commissioners with them.

Hereafter road commissioners will be accorded the privilege of riding with rural carriers for inspection of roads. The new rule is as follows:
"Postmasters at rural delivery offices are instructed to permit road supervisors or commissioners having direct charge of the highways, over which rural delivery routes are in operation, to ride over the routes with rural carriers when such road officials are actually engaged in the performance of their duties in connection with the inspection of the roads."

The new rule will be of great advantage especially to county superintendents of roads who will be able to inspect many miles of roads daily without going to the expense of horse or auto hire.

SURPRISE PARTY

FATHER KOHL TAKEN BY DEATH

Rector at Conewago Chapel Dies
after an Illness of Several Months.
Was Widely Known. Civil War
Veteran Dies at Cashtown.

The Rev. Germanus Kohl, aged 59 years, rector at Conewago Chapel died Tuesday night at Edge Grove, following an illness of seven weeks.

Father Kohl's death was due to an illness which started from a cold contracted early in November and developed into tuberculosis of the throat.

The Rev. Germanus Kohl was born March 17, 1855, in Berks county. His father, the late Samuel Kohl, was born at Haycock, Berks county, and his forefathers came to this country in 1774.

After teaching in the public schools in Berks county for three years Germanus Kohl entered Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, graduating in 1883. Two years later Germanus Kohl received the degree of master of arts and on August 22, 1887, he was ordained to the priesthood by Bishop O'Hara, of Scranton.

The first mission of the Rev. Father Kohl was Chambersburg, where he was assistant to the Rev. John J.
Reilly for fourteen months. In 1889
he was appointed pastor of St. Mary's Church at Snow Shoe, Center county, remaining twenty-seven months, when he was again sent to Chambersburg.

On May 6, 1893, the late Bishop
Thomas McGovern appointed Father
Kohl rector of St. Patrick's Pro-Cathedral, Harrisburg. Father Kohl was made one of Bishop McGovern's consultors and he held this office until 1899, when he was succeeded at St.
Patrick's Pro-Cathedral by the Rev.
M. M. Hassett, now Monsignor Hassett. The Rev. Father Kohl then went to Littlestown, where he was pastor until 1910. He was then transferred to Edge Grove to succeed the Rev. Eugene Halmeyer, as rector at Conewago Chapel.

Rev. Father Kohl is survived by one brother, Albert Kohl, of Philadelphia; three sisters, Mother Genevieve, of the Sisters of St. Joseph Conewago; Mrs.
Thomas McCarty, of Philadelphia; and Mrs. George Kuhns, of Bally, Berks county.

The body now lies in state at the rectory, dressed in the vestments worn at mass. In his hands he holds a chalice, the emblem of his priestly office. On Thursday evening the remains will be placed in the Chapel at 5 o'clock, where they will remain until Friday, when the funeral will be held.
Office at 10 o'clock; solemn requiem high mass immediately following. Interment in Conewago Chapel cemetery.

WILLIAM H. SHULTZ

William Henry Shultz, a veteran of the Civil War and a well known resident of Cashtown, died at his home in that place at 12:30 Wednesday afternoon from diabetes and complications aged 71 years.

Mr. Shultz was married three times.
His first wife was Miss Jane Baker and his second wife was Miss Sarah Emily. His third wife, who was Mrs.
John Gallagher, survives together with the following children of the first two marriages, Adam Shultz and James Shultz, of Cashtown; Frank Shultz, of Table Rock; Elmer Shultz, of Furlong, Berks county; Charles Shultz, of Arendsville; Curtis Shultz, of Table Rock; Mrs. C. J. Deardorff, of Orrtanna; Mrs. George Jeffcoat, of Gettysburg R. R.; Mrs. Crist Cooley, of Biglerville R. R.; and Mrs. Harry Olinger, of York.

In the Civil War he served with the 187th Pennsylvania Volunteers. Practically his entire life was devoted to farming.

Funeral at ten o'clock Saturday morning from the house. Sermon and interment at Flohr's Church.

FUNERAL NOTICE

died early on Wednesday morning at

NORI HAS ALSO BEEN SUSPENDED

Further Development at Carlisle School Results in Suspension of Clerk who is Said to have Admitted Destroying Papers.

Second Nori, chief clerk of the Indian School at Carlisle, who made a confession last week declaring that he had destroyed evidence of misuse of money at the instigation of Moses Friedman, suspended superintendent of the school, was also suspended Wednesday by Cato Sells Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

His suspension resulted from the transmission of his confession and evidence taken by the special committee headed by Senator Robinson. It is announced that this evidence shows Nori culpable and there is a doubt in the minds of officials whether the confession has a great deal of truth in it.

In ordering his suspension Commissioner Sells ordered a hearing. This hearing will bring to a focus the financial transactions at Carlisle in which Nori implicated the accused superintendent. Such a procedure will take the case against Nori out of the courts of Pennsylvania and transfer it to the Federal Authorities. Moses Friedman will be subpoenaed to appear and defend himself and the result of the investigation will undoubtedly decide the case not only against Nori but Friedman as well.

The opinion prevails that the suspended Indian clerk, Superintendent Friedman and Bandmaster Stauffer who was suspended a month ago will be dismissed from the service.

Developments also indicate that criminal procedure will follow. The government officials are determined to make those responsible for the misuse of funds pay a severe penalty.

FOR GREATER HANOVER

Movement Launched at Meeting of Borough Council.

A movement for a greater Hanover was launched at a meeting of the borough council, held Monday night, when Councilman Bender advocated the annexation of surrounding boroughs. Councilman Bender showed to council how the citizens of Hanover were keeping up a fire department at a cost of over $5,000 a year and people living outside the borough were receiving the same protection without paying a cent. Others took the same stand and while action was deferred until the next regular meeting, it was the sentiment of each member that a few months should be given to the residents of the outlying districts to come into the borough or fire protection will be denied. From the expression of council, they are now determined that if these districts will not come into the borough, the borough will not furnish the fire protection.
The west end seemed to be the part most directly referred to, while Penn-ville, Grangeville, Baresville and Abbottstown street extended were also included. Never before has council been so determined as at this time and Mr. Bender stated "If we wish to be fair to the citizens of Hanover; if we are looking after their interests we cannot help but take this stand in their behalf. Fire companies are expensive propositions to a town or city and the outside districts must assist in keeping these companies or give up their protection."

burg. Mr. and Mrs. Brewer left at

TO-NIGHT

Seven Hours in New York Next Gettysburg Attraction.

People nowadays are too busy to read long, drawn out descriptions of amusements, coming or going. Just now, a new musical play called "Seven Hours in New York" appears to be sailing along on the top wave of prosperity, and leaving a most enviable record. The title seems to strike the popular fancy. "Seven Hours in New York" suggests a lot of happenings.
The theatre-goer is convinced that something amusing is sure to result, anyhow. It is a large company, requiring a 60 ft. baggage car to transport the scenery and electrical effects.
The chances are that "Seven Hours in New York" will draw a packed house here, at Walter's Theatre Thursday, April 2, and repeat its great success of last season.—advertisement 1

HUERTA'S MEN HOLD BARRACKS

Fight Off Continued Assaults
by General Villa.

FOREIGNERS REPORTED SAFE

Both Armies Are Exhausted by Long Battle and Fighting Now Is Sanguinary.

Juarez, Mex., April 2.—The Federal forces still hold the general barracks and two smaller ones at Torreón despite the continued assaults of General Villa and his rebel troops.

The stubborn stand by the Huerta forces, admitted by General Carranza himself, indicates that there have been no material changes in the situation and that the battle still rages.

All foreigners in the Torreón district are reported safe, including H. S. Cunard Cummins, British consul at Gomez Palacio, where the fighting was the fiercest. Train loads of wounded are being taken from Gomez Palacio.

Miguel Diebold, Mexican Federal consul, made public a telegram from General Joaquin Maas, the Federal commander, reported advancing to the relief of Torreón, reading:

"Reported fall of Torreón untrue. Deny all such reports."

The message was dated Wednesday and purported to come from Saltillo, just east of Torreón.

It was rumored that one of Maas' troop trains was destroyed by dynamite at San Pedro de las Colonias, between Saltillo and Torreón.

The city of Juarez, however, awaits news of General Villa's renewed attack on Torreón. Both armies are said to be worn out and exhausted by the continued fighting.

An official statement given out at the rebel military headquarters claims that the rebels occupy Gomez Palacio, Lerdo and some of the outskirts of Torreón. The Federals have fortified themselves in some of the strongest buildings in the last named city, the report adds.

The Federals, among the defenses, are occupying a big hotel on the plaza, while the rebels have mounted guns a few blocks away in the market house.

From time to time the rebels have penetrated into various parts of the city at great sacrifice of life.

Numerous trains carrying supplies of all kinds leave Juarez daily and the hospitals are full. The fighting has been exceedingly sanguinary.

MISS TYLER OUSTED

Granddaughter of Former President Surrenders Postoffice.

Norfolk, Va., April 2.—Miss Mattie R. Tyler, granddaughter of John Tyler, tenth president of the United States, surrendered the Courtland, Va., postoffice, which she had held seventeen years, to B. A. Williams, appointed by Postmaster General Burleson from the civil service.

Miss Tyler refused to surrender the office when Mr. Williams presented the commission upon her return from Washington. Mr. Williams telegraphed for instructions. Miss Tyler then received orders to vacate. President Wilson has promised Miss Tyler to personally inquire into her case.

KICKED $1000 ABOUT STREET

York People Believed Old Wallet Was an April Fool Joke.

York, Pa., April 2.—For several hours yesterday an old wallet containing $1000 was kicked about on the street, everybody believing that it was placed there as an April fool joke.

Detective Thad Stroman decided to take a chance, however, and picked it up.

Those who were watching him were prepared to give him the laugh, but instead were surprised when they found that the wallet contained $1000. The money had been lost by William Sykes while he was taking it to a bank.

WIRELESS BRINGS AID TO SHIP

American Steamship Ashore Off Diamond Shoals.

Norfolk, Va., April 2.—Wireless call for assistance from the American vessel Herman Frash, in distress off the North Carolina coast, sent the revenue cutter Onondaga steaming to the rescue from this port.

The Frash, bound from Portland, Me., for Sabine Pass, Tex., reported that she was eighteen miles, southeast by east, of Diamond Shoals, with her rudder disabled.

White House Aide 33 Years.

Washington, April 2.—The President and Mrs. Wilson joined a host of public officials in extending congratulations to Warren Young, of Ohio, upon his thirty-third anniversary as a member of the executive staff at the White House. The veteran official went to the White House under his personal friend, ex-President Garfield.

Federal Judge Quits Bench.

Cleveland, O., April 2.—Declaring that his salary is inadequate and that private law practice would be far more remunerative, United States Judge William Luther Day, of the federal district court here, resigned. Judge Day is a son of Justice Day, of the supreme court of the United States.

GEN. WOTHERSPOON TO BE CHIEF OF STAFF

Succeeds Gen. Wood, Whose Term Expires April 21.

Washington, April 2.—The appointment of Major General William W. Wotherspoon to be chief of staff of the army, succeeding Major General Leonard Wood, whose four year term expires on April 21, was announced by Secretary of War Garrison.

General Wotherspoon is now assistant chief of staff, and he will be succeeded by Brigadier General Hugh L. Scott, now commanding the United States troops at El Paso and on the Texas border.

General Wotherspoon, however, is due to retire from active service because of age on Nov. 1, 1914. He will thus have but seven months to serve as chief of staff, when it will be necessary for Mr. Garrison to make another appointment. According to reports generally credited in Washington General Scott is to succeed General Wotherspoon as soon as that officer retires, while General Bliss, now at San Antonio, it is said, would be brought to Washington as assistant chief of staff.

The air tragedies of the day in Rheims were brought up to three when Pierre Testalat, an aviator, and Clement Avigny, a passenger, were killed while making a flight. Their plane caught fire in midair.

DEMAND REASONS FOR TOLLS REPEAL

Senators Insist Wilson Take Them Into Confidence.

LONG STRUGGLE IS AHEAD

Members Are About Evenly Divided on Issue and How Vote Will Result Is Uncertain.

Washington, April 2.—Demands for the reason on which President Wilson bases his request for the repeal of the tolls exemption clause of the Panama canal act marked the opening of the tolls fight in the senate, coincident with the report of the Sims repeal bill to that body and its reference to the committee on inter-oceanic canals.

Senator Poindexter, Progressive, offered a resolution that the senate should stop all progress on the tolls question until the president submitted the desired explanation of his course. Senator Norris introduced a bill authorizing arbitration of the tolls dispute and Senator Jones made a speech intimating that the president would not be asked to give reasons for his attitude, because he could give no sound reasons.

Jones predicted that his own resolution, similar to the Poindexter measure, would not be reported by the committee on foreign relations. He insisted that congress should be informed about the international situation, saying the senate was willing to aid the president, but wished to act "as equals and co-workers and not as dummies."

"We do not want to be used as pawns on the chess board of inexperienced diplomacy," he said.

The measure's appearance was accepted as the signal for the beginning of one of the most protracted and complicated contests that body ever faced. Senators both for and against the repeal said they saw no hope of a final disposition of the issue within the next five or six weeks.

Senator O'Gorman, who will lead the fight against the bill, planned to have the inter-oceanic canals committee, of which he is chairman, begin consideration of the measure next Tuesday, but believed no report would be possible until the 15th of April.

The committee already has before it various other bills relating to tolls exemption. It appeared that the members are nearly evenly divided on the chief issue. How a vote will result is regarded as extremely uncertain at the present time, but unless there is a change in the line-up the opponents of the repeal appear to have a majority of one.

The president and his supporters are confident of the bill winning in the senate, although it is admitted that the fight there will be harder fought than was that in the house. With the substantial victory in the house behind them, the president and his supporters turned all of their attention to the senate.

JILT MAN ENDS LIFE

Allentown, Swain Shoots Self When Told to Cease Calls.

Allentown, Pa., April 2.—After having threatened off and on for several weeks to kill himself because he had been jilted, Claude Bachman, twenty-nine years old, son of a farmer at Vera Cruz, committed suicide by shooting himself in the heart with a revolver.

Bachman was enamored of a young lady in Emmaus, who recently told him to cease calling, and neither coaxing nor ridicule cured him of his love sickness.

RATE RAISE RULING NEARS

Commission May Give Freight Decision Within Month.

TAMPERING IS CHARGED

Senator LaFollette Promises to Give Some Surprising Evidence of Attempts to Influence Decision.

Washington, April 2.—The eastern carriers petitioning for an increase of 5 per cent in freight rates will end today with the testimony of Samuel Rea, president of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Then it is expected a request will be made by the attorneys representing the carriers that the commission set some day next week for final argument on the main case and allow the collateral issues to be heard and decided later.

A decision is expected much earlier than had been planned. It may be handed down within a month.

Meanwhile Senator LaFollette promises to give the senate some surprising evidence of attempts to influence the commission in connection with the rate cases. He introduced a bill on the subject.

Recent developments have impelled the commission to put aside for the present collateral issues and extraneous questions and devote practically its entire time to the rate question. Such questions as spotting charges, free services of various kinds and similar propositions that have been considered with the application of the roads, it was understood, will not be permitted to interfere further with the fundamental proposition of a rate increase.

It is the purpose of the commission to expedite in every possible way final disposition of the case, and to this end continuous hearings will be held until the testimony shall have been ended.

That may occupy several days. It is expected then that the case may be submitted, either on briefs, which now are practically prepared and without oral argument, or on briefs with only short arguments.

It is believed to be not unlikely that the commission itself may make an announcement of its purpose to facilitate the disposition of the case.

The subject was brought before the senate when Mr. LaFollette introduced a bill to make unlawful any attempt to influence any proceeding before the interstate commerce commission except in accordance with its regulations, and gave notice he would speak by presenting evidence of efforts to influence the commission in connection with the eastern rate case now pending.

A fine of not more than $2000 or imprisonment for one year, or both, are provided for violation of the proposed act.

RUBE WADDELL IS DEAD

Famous Base Ball Pitcher Succumbs
to Tuberculosis in Texas.

San Antonio, Tex., April 2.—George Edward ("Rube") Waddell, the famous base ball pitcher, formerly a member of the Philadelphia Athletics died here. He had been ill for a long time of tuberculosis.

Waddell was the most eccentric and unreliable pitcher in the country, but the most effective when in shape. He was born in Bradford, Pa., in 1875. Waddell went to the Bradford schools but paid more attention to base ball than his education and early won renown as a twirler of phenomenal ability.

In 1897 he went to Volant college and later in the year joined Louisville in 1898 he was with Detroit and Homestead, Pa.; with Columbus and Milwaukee in 1899; with Pittsburgh and Los Angeles in 1901.

Connie Mack took a trip to Los Angeles in 1902 and was so favorably impressed with his work that he made him a big offer to jump to the Athletics. It was his wonderful pitching that enabled the Athletics to win the pennant in that year, and he was also a big factor in the 1905 pennant winning team. In 1908 Waddell was sold by the Athletics to the St. Louis American team.

Inherited Character.
It has been explained that character and behavior of all organic matter, plants as well as animals and human beings, is determined by what are known as character units. Thus in taking a hypothetical case of the shrewd, cruel father and the shiftless, kind mother, we have four distinct character units, which through inheritance reappear variously grouped in the offspring.

Queer Toothache Cure.
As a cure for toothache, Mr. E. A. Rawlence told the Dorset (Eng.) Antiquarian Field club at Dorchester recently, a Dorset farmer two or three years ago recommended a friend to put his arm round a young oak tree, mark the place where his fingers met, and there make a slit in the bark. Then with his right hand he was to pull some hair from behind his right ear and put it in the slit in the bark.

ST. LOUIS AS A VILLAGE.

In 1767 it Had Forty-five Houses and as Many Families.

Captain Philip Pitman, an officer in the engineering corps of the British army, was selected by General Gage in 1767 to make an expert report on the territory just acquired from France on the east side of the Mississippi river. Pitman came to the Mississippi valley, the Illinois country it then was called, and traveled about for several months. Here is what he wrote of St. Louis in the early part of 1767:

"This village is one league and a half above Kaskaskias, on the west side of the Mississippi, being the present headquarters of the French in these parts. It was first established in the year 1764 by a company of merchants, to whom M. D'Abbadie had given an exclusive grant for the commerce with the Indian nations on the river Missouri, and for the security and encouragement of this settlement the staff of French officers and the commissary were ordered to remove here, upon the surrendering of Fort Chartres (forty miles south of St. Louis on the Illinois side) to the English, and great encouragement was given to the inhabitants to remove with them, most of whom did.

"The company has built a large house and store here, and there are about forty-five houses and as many families. No fort or barracks are yet built. The French garrison consists of a captain commandant, two lieutenants, a fort major, one sergeant, one corporal and twenty men."—St. Louis Times.

No Room for Women on Juries.

Neither the women of California nor the legal authorities, it seems, altogether favor the idea of jury duty for women. Attorney-General Webb says that a jury under the common law consists of "twelve free and lawful men;" this has been the custom and court construction of centuries. He can find nothing in California's statutes that enjoins this duty upon women. Dr. Ethel Lynn, Mrs. Ettie Blum, Mrs. Ella Costello Bennett and Mrs. Austin Speery of Sacramento, while willing themselves to serve as jury women, believe that by the ruling the majority of their sex in California will "experience a relief." In the course of political evolution, however, the women "will attempt to have a law passed conferring this obligation upon them."

How Malta Became European.

Malta underwent a geographical as well as a political change through its acquisition by England in 1814. It had always been regarded as part of Africa, to which it seemed to belong both from topography and language. After its annexation, however, it was discovered that the garrison were entitled to the higher pay granted to troops employed out of Europe, and were therefore more privileged than the soldiers in the Ionian islands. To remedy this parliament passed an act decreeing that so far as pay went Malta should be regarded as part of Europe. It used to be a joke that Malta had become European by act of parliament, and the jest soon became a reality.

By CHARLES E. VAN LOAN

I.—THE TEN THOUSAND : : DOLLAR ARM : :

From "The Ten Thousand Dollar Arm and Other Tales of the Big League"

Copyright, 1912, by Small, Maynard & Company

When Umpire Burke made the announcement at the beginning of the seventh the Canaries welcomed the announcement with derisive hoots and jeers.

"Well, here's grandpa!" they shouted. "Old man, what are you going to do with that $10,000 arm?"

Bruno set his spikes in the box and began to pitch. It was the first time for many years that he had gone into the box knowing that his arm was not "right." He was grinning cheerfully when he slipped over the first strike, but the smile soon faded from his face. The $10,000 arm, so long coddled and nursed and petted like a spoiled child, was sending in its sharp protest.

The nervous fans chirped up marvelously when the first batter splashed out via third base and the second one fouled to Sullivan. The third batter—and this was the demon Jimmy McLennon, whose hitting was taking him to the big league next season—lined a single into center and presumed upon his luck to the extent of attempting to steal second base. The Hon. Stephen Sullivan came up on his toes with a perfect throw, and the chesty outfielder perished in a cloud of dust and a whirl of arms and legs—Sullivan to McRae.

"Nice pegging, kid," said Smelzer as the battery trudged to the bench.

"Yes; Mac had it waiting for him when he slid," said Steve. "How's the old girl? Hurt you much?"

Between themselves they usually referred to the $10,000 arm as "the old girl."

"She's awful fretful around the shoulder. You know, she ain't been feeling any better since that time she was hit by that twelve inning game."

Two men on the bases in the next inning, but only Keith, the first baseman, sent a line drive fairly at the shortstop's head. Instinct caused that young man to throw up his hands to save his face, and the ball struck, was passed on for a double play, and the side was out.

"Take that horseshoe out of your pocket," vociferated the faithful retainers on the bleachers. "You ought to be ashamed."

Bruno wriggled through the eighth, lining something up, and the Canaries, now armed with the $10,000 arm, were a case for the night.

Every ball cost him an effort, and the pain in the shoulder was becoming unbearable. The redoubtable "Wingo" Jones doubled after two men were out, but the next man poked a weak infield fly, and Bruno trudged back to the bench with the blessings of the multitude thundering after him.

Bruno at bat was more or less of a joke, and Oscar Peterson refused to waste time with the old man. He curved three strikes over for Smelzer, and Bruno limped back to the bench. Not for anything would he have taken a hard swing at a ball. Two more Blue Jays were plucked in quick order, and Sullivan helped to peel off the pitcher's sweater.

"Well, Steve," said Bruno, "it looks as if this one run lead will have to do us."

"One run is a whole lot when you ain't got it," said Steve philosophically. Judging by the "crabbing" on the visitors' bench, the Canaries thought so too.

Corson, their catcher, was the stand and bearer of their forlorn hope. Rube Corson was a dangerous batter if he could get a ball anywhere between his waist and his knees. A high ball he could do nothing with.

With exasperating precision, Bruno lobbed over two strikes, each one fully as high as the law allowed. Corson thought they were too high and barked at the umpire. Then he waited swearing savagely under his breath.

"Why, Clarence," said Sullivan in a high falsetto. "Shame on you! I bet he's hungry."

Corson wagged his bat up and down and took a good spike hold. Oh, what he would do to one between the belt and the stockings! Murder! Corson waited, nervously, his eyes fixed on the pitcher's mound. Bruno, his face toward the plate and his eyes lowered, and his face wore an expression of deep thought. Corson seized the opportunity to paw another hole in the ground and rub his right palm against his thigh in order to take a firm grip on the bat. With out looking up Bruno stepped suddenly forward, and over came the ball, taking Corson entirely by surprise.

"A peach!" said Umpire Burke. "Yer out!"

The Blue Jays on the bench howled with delight, the infield sent up a scattering volley of yells, and the fans hopped up and down. Corson went back to the bench, tearing up the turf with his lagging spikes, for all the world like a little boy dragging his feet in a dusty road.

"A-h-h-h-h!" he growled when his teammates began to blister his tough hide with reproaches. "Who'd have thought that old stiff would have the nerve to pull that bush league trick in a tight game like this?"

The pitcher was next on the list, and Harry Keane, manager of the Canaries, sent in a substitute for Peterson—a big, rawboned outfielder named Merrill. Merrill was overanxious and very nervous, and Bruno kept him waiting a long time. Then he sent up such a feeble looking cripple of a ball, such a discouraged, wabbly sort of ball, that Merrill afterward swore that he saw the trademark on the horsehide turn over nine times on its way to the plate, but he fouled that dinky offering over the grand stand.

"Huh—strike!" said Burke. Merrill thumped the plate with his bat.

"Mercy!" said Steve Sullivan. "You are angry, too, aren't you, Eddie? I bet you won't hit the next one at all. If you could hit hard enough to earn your one-hundred-and-fifty month Keane wouldn't have been playing you on the bench all season?"

Now, it was a sprained ankle that sent Merrill to the bench, and Sullivan knew it. The big outfielder spluttered incoherently, and over came the ball. Merrill collected himself for another giant swing—and flew out back of second base.

By this time the fans were in a terrific commotion, and there was considerable excitement on the visitors' bench. Keane was running up and down in front of his players and flaying them with the rough side of his tongue.

"Here's an old man, a thousand years dead and buried, and you're going to let him win this pennant from you? Are you? What's he got out there today? Nothing but a wish and a prayer—nothing at all! Oh, you're a fine bunch!"

Halsey, the second baseman, seeing that he was going to get nothing but strikes, chopped at the first one and dropped a Texas leaguer over on the third base line and halfway between two fielders. He could not have placed it better had he used a messenger boy, and the throw to second did not come near catching him. Two bases on a Texas leaguer!

"Sap!" Halsey, the right fielder, also smashed at the first ball and drove a vicious offer toward first base. Billy Keith knocked it down and chased after it, and Bruno, his aged legs knocking like drumsticks, raced over had not the bag ahead of Halsey. All in vain, for Keith could not make the toss in time. Result, Halsey on first and Rayburn on third, ready to sneak home on a fumbled throw to second, a passed ball or a hit.

Jimmy McLennon, the 325 hitter and prospective big leaguer, tossed away two of the three bats which he had been swinging and advanced to the plate. He was the worst man Bruno might have been called upon to face in this crisis.

The veteran stood still for several seconds, glancing from first to third, as if watching the runners. Bruno was thinking hard. Here was a man who was almost certain to hit any sort of a ball that came over the plate. Pittman had been warming up for two innings, and Heinle had at least a sound pitching arm, but he was young and had nerves. Bruno was an old man without a nerve in his body, unless those were nerves which were sending fiery pains through his left shoulder.

"No," thought Bruno; "no, it was put up to me. I'll stick, and I won't walk this bird either. The next fellow is a good hitter too."

The veteran stabbed the turf with his spikes and spat courageously. He had not pitched a curve ball thus far. It was likely that the Canaries knew it. Halsey would steal on that first ball anyway, but would Keane have the nerve to send Rayburn along to the plate on a double steal? Bruno doubted it. Keane would be more likely to place his dependence upon Jimmy McLennon's bat. Bruno signalled Sullivan to hold the ball and let Halsey go down. It was gambling upon what McLennon might do, but Bruno felt reasonably certain that the batter would wait for Halsey to reach second base.

Attempting a curve with his arm in its painful condition seemed like burning up the tag end of the $10,000 wing, but Bruno set himself and let fly, and out of the corner of his eye he saw Halsey start down on the pitch. The ball went twisting across the outside corner, and McLennon swept his bat over the plate, taking the one chance in a thousand that the movement might confuse the catcher and make him miss the ball. Steve whirled toward third base with his arm raised for the throw, but Rayburn dodged back to the bag, and the stage was set for trouble.

"Now, then, Jimmy," shouted Keane, "we've got this old man just where we want him! Lay on it, boy! Lay on it!"

The home fans became silent. The few Canaries present set up a faint twittering, a very small noise in a great and apprehensive hush. Bruno hitched at his belt. It was his sign for his "break" ball. This time, with desperation to lend the wrist its old time snap, the ball broke for him, and McLennon misjudged it. His pile driving smash tipped a foot, against the wire netting of the grand stand.

Mechanically Steve dropped his mask behind McLennon and trotted after the ball. Would the old fellow have the nerve to try his best trick in a pinch of this sort? Two strikes and no balls! Was there a chance to heckle McLennon into that instant's inattention? Sullivan threw the ball back as soon as he picked it up and Bruno took it with one hand. That was the sign. Yes, the old fellow was going to try it! Steve Sullivan had some nerve himself, but he stole a glance at Rayburn, crouching off third base like a greyhound in leash, and he thought of what might happen if there should be a fumble at the end of that blind jump behind the plate. Steve had no great supply of imagination, but for an instant he had the feeling that his belt buckle had been turned to ice.

Bruno, standing in the box, knew that this was his only hope. There was one more effort in his tortured old $10,000 arm, and all he asked was the chance to make that effort and speed enough to sneak that ball over the plate—somehow.

Sullivan came slowly back toward the plate in order to give Bruno time to set himself. McLennon was motionless, save for a slight oscillating movement which he imparted to the bat.

Steve squatted behind the batter and picked up his mask, half raising it to his face.

"You're the terrible hitter who's going up to the big league next season, they tell me," said he, with a sneer. "You can hit some in the bushes, but once you get up there Christy Mathewson and the rest of those boys will take that big pat away from you and you'll be so light without it that you'll float!"

McLennon half turned his head. "Oh, you be!"

It was all over before any one found time to yell. As McLennon took his eyes off the pitcher, Steve jerked the mask away and leaped forward like a panther. McLennon swung back again, but the mischief had been done. The last thing the demon hitter heard before the storm broke was the thud of the ball in the glove and Burke's yell: "Batter out!"

Half an hour later Dave Bullen tore himself away from the wine party at the corner place. The mayor was there and many prominent citizens, and they were all very happy. The owner found the Blue Jays in the clubhouse singing like linnets and snuffing in the shower room, where they were living over again the excitement of the last inning—that is to say, all but two of them.

Boxing, Ancient and Modern. Although boring and pugilism, occupying much attention at the present time, were popular in classic Greece, they seem to have died out in the middle ages, and it is not until the end of the seventeenth century that we find references to boxing as a regular English sport. Boxing, as distinguished from pugilism, may be said to date from 1866, when the Amateur Athletic club was formed, and the Queensberry rules drawn up. The boxing glove, however, had been invented about a century before by Broughton, "the father of English pugilism," who used them in his practice bouts. But you will remember that the boxing glove, as described by Virgil, was a terrible instrument of offense.

Tells the Time Automatically. The Home Telephone company of Spokane has closed a contract for a phonograph which will, when installed, automatically give the time of day to all patrons of the company. Manager Byron E. Cooney of that company said: "Chicago is the only city in the country that now has one of the machines, and it serves the purpose of 40,000 users of the automatic telephones in that city. I am told that it gave the time of day to 16,000 people in 24 hours by actual count. The phonograph will tell the time twenty times a minute at intervals of three seconds. Any subscriber calling the number designated will be told the time four times before the connection is cut off."

Cause of Nervous Breakdown. When we feel sleepy the drain upon the nerve cells stops and the heart has an opportunity to put them into good working order again. The heart luckily never gets tired unless we strain it. When we do demand too much of the heart it becomes unable to repair the nerve cells properly during sleep, and as a result the whole nervous system goes to pieces.

Changing Famous Street.

The Strand, London's Broadway, will be more modern in appearance within a short time. To widen this narrow main artery of traffic many buildings and a parallel street were sacrificed, and while the traffic situation was improved the general aspect of things from the artistic viewpoint was not. Since that improvement was made a great area on the north side of the Strand, surrounded partly by a fence and having erected on it tall advertising signboards rented by the thrifty London County Council, has been an eyesore to most persons. Now the way has been paved for the erection of handsome buildings on this valuable piece of property.—The Argonaut.

Cherries Grown for Royalty.

Every morning since All Saints Day the train which arrives from Nice brings a little package. It contains cherries grown in the open by an amateur gardener at Nice. Some days the weight of the package is a pound; on other occasions it is two pounds. The fruit is destined for the royal table at Brussels. It is said that this amateur gardener manages to grow the fruit nearly all the year round. His method, it is believed, consists of carefully covering the trees at night with straw matting. The grower gets about $20 a pound for his fruit.—London Globe.

Lawyer Had Enough.

A badgering lawyer was examining a doctor in an assault case, says the New York Sun. The solicitor represented the defense, and the doctor testified that he treated the prosecutor for a black eye. "What do you mean by a 'black eye'?" queried the legal gentleman. "I mean," said the doctor, without a smile, "that the prosecutor had received a severe contusion over the lower portion of the frontal bone, producing extensive ecchymosis around the eye, together with considerable infiltration of the subjacent areolar tissue." The medical witness was relieved from further cross-examination.

THE APRON ONE OF THE NEWEST TUNIC EFFECTS.

Tunics have become so popular that designers have nothing to do but invent new arrangements; there are half tunics, full tunics, one-sided, even tunics and tunics pointed on the sides; the one illustrated in No. 8281 is the apron tunic. This is brought about by two gathered ruffles which narrow in front, and lengthen in back to form a double flounced overskirt. This costume is made up in mahogany charmeuse, with the two flounces in mouseline of the same shade. A most attractive feature of this frock is the bodice, which is held in at the neck and front with a ribbon forming a ruffle of the material. A shaped, pointed girle is another distinctive point.

For size 36, this dress requires 6 yards of 36 inch charmeuse, which may be purchased from $1.50 a yard. Frills and flounces are seen on many small frocks and coats; they lend a quaint, attractive note without being too fussy. No. 8260 is a dress in drop-shoulder style, fastening in front and having an applied yoke. This little dress is developed in one of the new silky crepes in a soft shade of blue. For a child of 6 this model requires 2 1/2 yards of 36 inch material. No. 8281—sizes 34 to 42. No. 8260—sizes 2 to 10. Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

WOMAN DEFIES HEALTH BOARD

She Breaks Quarantine and is Sent to Jail.

Newark, Del., April 2.—After defying the state boards of health of both Delaware and Maryland, in addition to the local authorities, Mrs. Richard Pierson, mother of five children, was given an option of paying $30 fine or serving thirty days in the workhouse by Magistrate L. W. Scott for violating the state quarantine laws. She chose the prison sentence and was sent to the workhouse.

The trouble arose over the placing of a quarantine on her home when Dr. Charles H. Blake and Dr. H. G. M. Kollock, president of the Newark board of health, reported that her daughter, Elizabeth, nineteen years of age, was suffering from scarlatina. Mrs. Pierson broke quarantine and took her daughter to Elkton, Md., on Monday to consult with another physician. Tuesday she again took the patient to Wilmington to see Dr. A. E. Frantz, secretary of the state board of health.

When she called on Dr. Frantz he at once placed her in an automobile and brought her back to Newark. She was then arraigned before Magistrate Lovett and admitted tearing down the quarantine card. She was placed under probation for twenty-four hours, but Mrs. Pierson tore down another quarantine card and her arrest followed.

TOO WISE ON ALL FOOLS' DAY

Chicagoan Pays No Attention to "Fire" and is Rescued Unconscious.

Chicago, April 2.—"Fire!" yelled some one outside the window of M. J. Daly's bedroom. Daly leaped from his bed. "I'm wise," he said. "It's April Fools' day."

Then he went back to sleep. A few minutes later Daly and his wife were carried unconscious from the room by firemen.

Joker's Mean Trick in Chicago.
Chicago, April 2.—A list of April jokes perpetrated by some person caused more than 500 unemployed men to congregate in a cold rain in front of the Soo line freight terminals and wait for the employment promised by the joker.

The crowd surged against the steel gates, breaking the locks, and poured into the yards shouting: "Give us the jobs!" It took the police nearly an hour to clear the men out of the yards. The author of the hoax is sought by the police.

Four Policewomen Named.
Pittsburgh, Pa., April 2.—C. H. Hubbard, director of public safety, announced the appointment of four policewomen, the first in Pittsburgh. Their names are known to none but the director and the officer to whom they will report. They will look after young girls coming to the city and investigate cafes where liquor is served to women. It is not the intention to have them have anything to do with law violation by men.

Find Pin in Appendix.
Mahanoy City, Pa., April 2.—Surgeons at the State hospital in Ashland, operating on Michael Foley, of Mahanoy City, for appendicitis, found a bent pin in the boy's appendix. Young Foley has no recollection of swallowing the pin. He will recover.

MISSING GIRL RETURNS

Jessie Wood Tells Story of Kidnaping, Which Police Doubt.

Ridgefield Park, N. J., April 2.—Jessie Wood, the fifteen-year-old girl who disappeared from her home here on Tuesday night, returned last night as mysteriously as she went.

She told a story of having been kidnaped by three men in an automobile and of her escape, which conflicts with some of the facts known to the police.

She started for the meeting of the Camp Fire Girls, which was being held at the home of Mrs. Caroline Mavis, a short distance away, and went up Teaneck avenue to Wynant street, she says, an automobile with three men in it drew up ahead of her and stopped, the men getting out.

"As I passed them," continued Jessie, "one of the men grabbed me from behind and lifted me into the automobile. There a cloth with some queer smelling stuff on it was placed over my face and I became unconscious."

"When I came to I think we were in New York. The men had left the car and the chauffeur was asleep. I jumped out and ran until I met a policeman."

"I told him what had happened to me and he took me to his home. I stayed there all night and did not let you know what had become of me, because I felt sick from the drug."

The police believe from the vagueness of her story that she had never been far from home. They think that she may have stayed at the home of a girl friend with whom she has been very intimate.

MURDER AT SEASHORE INDICATED BY CLUES

Girl's Bloodstained Clothing Found Near Egg Harbor.

Atlantic City, April 2.—Another mystery that is as puzzling of solution as that of the famous Jane Adams pier case confronts the authorities of Atlantic county.

Investigation during the past forty-eight hours has disclosed what appears to be the brutal murder of a girl in the woods of the mainland between Egg Harbor and Absecon, fifteen miles from Atlantic City.

After viewing the blood-stained garments and hair brought to Atlantic City by his detective, Charles Moore, the county prosecutor assigned L. R. L. and Applegate, detectives, to the case.

The blood-stained apparel was discovered on Sunday morning, scattered along a lonely stretch of the Egg Harbor-Absecon road, three miles outside of Egg Harbor. There were locks of hair nearly two feet long, covered with blood, and a keen-edged cobbler's knife was found.

The detectives could discover no traces of a struggle and believe the murder occurred in one of the Italian settlements farther back in the woods of Atlantic county.

Another theory is that the murder was committed in an automobile, coming toward Atlantic City, and that the garments were tossed into the brush beside the road.

The authorities of Philadelphia and its vicinity have been notified in the hope that they can furnish a clue.

$169,150,000 FOR PENSIONS

One of the Largest of Yearly Budgets Reported in the House.

Washington, April 2.—The annual pension appropriation bill was reported to the house by the appropriations committee. It provides $169,150,000 for the fiscal year 1915.

The pension roll for the current fiscal year was $180,300,000, and of this amount the pension bureau will have remaining about $7,000,000 because of the high death rate among the veterans of the Civil War.

The appropriations committee reports say that during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912, 33,891 pensioners died, and for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, the deaths totaled 36,000.

A RICH soup with vegetables makes a substantial meal for the Lenten season. Lenten soups may be made with milk and butter. Veal or chicken stock may be substituted when the fast is only a partial one.

Tomato Cream Soup.—Mix to a smooth paste one tablespoonful of flour with two heaping tablespoonfuls of butter, add one quart of boiling milk, a little at a time to prevent lumping. Stew one can of tomatoes until they can be strained easily and, if very acid, use one-half teaspoonful of soda; pour into the thickened milk, seasoning with salt and pepper and serve very hot.

Sustaining Lenten Fare.

Peanut Soup.—Shell a pint of roasted peanuts and remove the paper-like covering of the kernels. Grind the meats into a fine powder. Use the powdered nuts in a cream soup made from a pint of milk and a pint of water, a scant tablespoonful of flour and a full tablespoonful of butter rubbed together, one teaspoonful of salt and white pepper to taste.

Soup Worth While.

Potato Soup.—Take three potatoes, one quart of milk, two slices of onion, three tablespoonfuls of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, one-quarter teaspoonful of celery salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, a few grains of cayenne pepper and one teaspoonful of chopped parsley. Cook the potatoes in boiling water. When soft rub through a strainer. Scald the milk with the onion, remove onion and add milk slowly to potatoes. Melt half the butter, add other ingredients, stir until well mixed, then stir into boiling soup, cook one minute, strain, add the remaining butter and sprinkle with parsley.

Served With Wafers.

Vegetable Cream Soup.—To one level teaspoonful of cold cooked rice add one ounce of dry grated cheese, one cupful of vegetable stock (liquor remaining from cooking peas, cabbage, etc.), one and one-half pints of hot milk, one level teaspoonful each of salt and pepper. Put these ingredients into a saucepan. Stir over the fire until it boils, then remove and pour into soup plates. Beat the white of one egg until stiff, salt lightly; with a teaspoon dispose the egg in little mounds on the surface of the soup. Serve with cone shaped wafers.

Guam's New Governor.

The recent announcement that the little Pacific island of Guam is to be made an important advance base for marines has awakened interest in Pacific Sam's smallest colony. We got the island as one of our byproducts of the war with Spain, and it seemed of small value. But now because of its strategic position as a naval base it has assumed a new aspect. Guam is 1,300 miles south of Japan, 1,500 miles east from Manila, a little over 3,000 miles from Honolulu and right on the line from the Panama canal to the Philippines and east Asia. The island is under control of the secretary of the navy and is governed by a naval officer and a detachment of marines.

CAPTAIN W. J. MAXWELL.

Captain William John Maxwell, U. S. N., who has just been appointed governor, succeeds Commander Alfred W. Hinds. Several hundred marines have been ordered from the Philippines to augment the force already at Guam, and preparations are under way to make it an important naval base and coaling station. The new governor of Guam is a native of the District of Columbia and was appointed to the Naval Academy in June, 1874. He is fifty-five years of age and reached his present grade in the service in March, 1911. Previous to his assignment to Guam Captain Maxwell was on duty at the Naval War college at Newport, R. I.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and No-body wil Know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and abundant.

The Last Shot In a Feud

By F. A. MITCHEL

A girl about seventeen years old, in calico dress, sunbonnet and cowhide boots, was walking through a wood in Kentucky on her way to a spring for water when, making a short cut in a bend in the path, she came upon a man asleep. He was young, but there was a hunted look on his face that made him look older.

There was a feud of long standing between the Griggses and the Backuses, and a few days before Abel Griggs had been shot and killed by Josh Backus. Since the killing all the Griggses had been looking for Josh in order to cut another notch on their rifles to make up for the latest Backus notch, said notches denoting the number killed.

The girl was Mahulda Griggs, and she looked down on Josh Backus. He had been driven by a cordon of Griggs' men, who were closing in on him, to the wood near Mahulda's home. He knew there was no escape for him and had thrown himself on the grass in despair. Having been long without food or sleep he had fallen into a slumber.

He awoke with a start and saw Mahulda looking down on him. Each knew who the other was, though they had never met before. Josh sat up and, holding his gun stock foremost to Mahulda, said huskily:

"You're a Griggs, I reckon, and I might as well own up that I'm Josh Backus as killed Abel Griggs. I'm sure to be taken and shot. I'd rather be killed by you than any of the Griggs men, and I'll be obliged to you if you'll put a bullet into me where it will kill me quickest."

The girl took the gun.

"Reckon I ought to kill you," she said, "seem' you killed one o' the best of us Griggs people."

"Put the ball thar," said the other, rising to his feet and tapping his heart with his finger.

"What did yo' kill Abel fo'?"

"To match the killin' of Jim Backus."

"Reckon you'll be killed to match the killin' o' Abel, and then another Griggs 'll be killed to match the killin' o' yo'."

"That's the way of it. Come, do the shootin'." Like enough, some one'll come along."

"I don't want to kill yo'," said the girl, bringing the gun to her shoulder.

"It's the best thing yo' kin do fo' me."

She aimed at him, then lowered the gun.

"I mought hide yo'."

"Hide me! You, a Griggs, hide a Backus?"

"Reckon."

"Ef your people would find it out they'd kill yo' fo' doin' of it."

"Sartin'."

"Well, what yo' goin' to do?"

"Hide yo', I reckon."

He stepped up to her, took her hand in his and looked intently into her eyes where he saw a struggle between pity and self sacrifice on the one hand and revenge and possible death for herself on the other. And he saw, too, the moment when the decision came.

She took off her sunbonnet and handed it to him, then divested herself of her dress, which she also gave to him. He understood and put them on. When he was in her outer garments she put on his woolen shirt, trousers and hat.

"Yo' go down the path to the spring," she said, "it's on the edge o' the clearin' what yo' kin see across. Ef yo' don't see nary one go over. Ef yo're in danger I'll show myself till yo' git clear of 'em."

"But they'll shoot yo' fo' me."

"Reckon not. Ef they do they'll have to hit me."

"Mayn't I have a kiss befo' I go?" he asked with a trembling voice.

"Reckon."

She received the kiss passively; then they parted to go in different directions, the man taking the bucket, the girl the gun. When he reached the spring he filled the bucket, at the same time casting his eye over the clearing. He knew that one of the cordon of Griggses was not far away; but, seeing no one, he started across. He hadn't gone far before he heard a voice:

"Hello thar! Yo' Mahuldy! What yo' goin' to?"

He kept on without replying. Presently he heard the same voice say, "Mahuldy, ef that's yo', yo' come yere or I'll shoot at yo'!"

Backus kept on without reply. Then suddenly he saw a sun flash on a rifle barrel, and for a moment he hesitated. Then came the rifle's crack, but no bullet came near him. He shuddered, for he believed that Mahulda had shown herself and had received the fire. Hearing no further sound, he ran to the wood beyond the clearing.

The Griggses, who had fired supposedly at Backus and seen him fall, ran up to him. There lay Mahulda, pale and bleeding.

Quite likely the bullet that hit her saved her life. Her own people could not kill her, and the sacrifice she had made filled their hearts with compassion. When she recovered a meeting was called among the Griggses, and Mahulda was sent to the Backuses with a proposition to end the feud. There she met Abel Backus, who had little difficulty in persuading his people to agree to drop the killing.

Some months later a mingling of Griggses and Backuses celebrated the wedding of Josh Backus and Mahulda Griggs.

Nothing Useless.

There is nothing useless to men of sense; clever people turn everything to account.—La Fontaine.

HELP THEM OUT.

There will not likely be any debate among sensible men over the statement that if the females among the farm animals that will soon be bringing forth their young could have their way in the matter they would much prefer to be in such physical condition as to best meet the ordeal and to confer upon their little ones strong and vigorous constitutions than to be depleted and give birth to dead or weakly offspring. In a vast majority of cases tragedies among domestic animals are entirely unnecessary, being due either to the carelessness or shortsightedness of the owners, who invariably are the losers financially when these troubles occur at farrowing, lambing or calving time. Common humanity and regard for animal comfort and welfare, as well as the money consideration, should be sufficient to suggest that care which will give the desired results. This care should include dry and comfortable quarters, in which there should be the largest possible amount of both sunshine and fresh air. The rations fed should be blood and muscle forming rather than fat and heat producing and should include generous allowances of the protein feeds—clover and alfalfa hay, bran, soaked oats and moderate amounts of either oilmeal or high grade tankage. Both skim milk and buttermilk furnish protein in a most desirable form for the brood sows and should be used whenever they can be got. The mistake made by most farmers who have trouble when the young things begin to come is in feeding a ration consisting of too much corn. Experiments have shown that corn alone is better than wheat alone, but the former should be balanced, as suggested above, by a protein concentrate. It is not too late even now to so modify the feed rations as to produce good condition for the pregnant farm animals and insure for them vigorous offspring.

A GOOD ORCHARD CROP.

Where one is near a market that will take considerable quantities of asparagus (the writer has never heard of a market that got too much of it), it makes an ideal crop to grow between the rows of young orchard trees. In making ready for the asparagus the soil should be plowed deeply and pulverized finely with a disk. While from a dozen to twenty loads of well rotted manure broadcasted will give good results, the asparagus will do better if furrows are plowed to a good depth where the rows of the vegetable are to be planted and the manure scattered in these to the depth of six or seven inches and as many inches of soil turned back to cover the manure. The rows should be from three to three and a half feet apart and should not be placed nearer than five or six feet to the trees. The bed will give a good return in about three years and better returns as it grows older. In the course of nine or ten years the asparagus roots should be removed and the trees allowed to monopolize the ground.

SOURCES OF INFECTION.

As a result of the co-operative work that has been carried on in a number of states under the direction of the federal bureau of animal industry along the line of controlling and eradicating hog cholera some interesting facts have been published as to the most prolific sources of infection in connection with outbreaks of the disease. Sources of infection were classified roughly as of "near" and "distant" origin. It is estimated that in 45 per cent of the herds infected the disease had been spread from distant sources, while 55 per cent appear to have been infected from nearby sources. In 33 per cent of the cases investigated the infection was found to be due to the visiting of neighbors back and forth or the exchange of work. In over one-fourth of the classes birds are charged with spreading the infection, the chief offenders being crows and sparrows.

EAT THEIR HEADS OFF.

A weeding out process should be carried on in the poultry yard as well as in the dairy. Statistics show that the average hen in America lays only seventy-five eggs in a year. This means that there are a host of hens who lay a good deal less than this number to offset the output of the large number that lay more than seventy-five eggs. With egg prices as they will average during the year, these six and a quarter dozen eggs give the producer a trifle more than a dollar. The bill of fare for one of these hens, with prices of cereals as high as they are at present, is not far from $1.50. In other words, the owner is in soak about fifty cents a year on such birds and throws in his or her labor for nothing.

OLD TIME WINTERS.

There may not be any permanent change in our winters, but many an old timer cites as proof that there has been some modification of that winter some forty years ago, when a blizzard and snowstorm continued for three consecutive days and when residents on the then frontier in southern Minnesota and north Iowa were compelled to burn a good share of the household furniture to keep from freezing to death. When that storm was over the snow was found drifted in places from fifteen to twenty-five feet deep, and many a farmer had to cut a hole through his straw thatched stable in order to get feed and water to his imprisoned stock.
